It's Back to School time already?

September art gallery will showcase Lititz artist Stephen Leed!

Stephen Leed is a self taught Wildlife and Equine Artist from Lititz, PA, who mostly works in oils. Born in Lancaster, he began painting as a hobby in 1971. His first exhibit of his work was the Annual Lititz Outdoor Art show in 1974. He still exhibits each year in this show.

In the late 1970's Stephen began to specialize in wildlife subjects. He was invited to exhibit at the Annual Middle Creek Wildlife Art show in 1986. His work first appeared on the cover of Bird World Magazine on the January/February 1991 issue. In 1994, and again in 1996, He won the Game Commission's Working Together for Wildlife Competition. To date, Leed has had nine covers on Pennsylvania Game News, and five on Bird Watcher's Digest.

In recent years, Leed has also become known as an equine artist. Three of his paintings have been shown at the International Museum of the Horse, in Lexington Kentucky, as part of the American Academy of Equine Art's Fall open juried show. His painting, "Not so Endless Summer" was the 2007 People's Choice winner at the Lancaster Open Art Award Show. His other awards include finalist in the Artist's Magazine 2000 annual Art competition in the Animal art category, and first place flat art at the Lancaster County Woodcarvers and Wildlife Art Festival in both 2000 and 2001.

Leed's art will be on display from September 1st through September 30th!
